And after an interval: for after two sittings, he (the Prophet) said, "By God, it will be as if we were in this world and on the other side of the sea." For the apostle (Paul) wrote to those in Corinth that they should "receive no longer, nor hold fast to any thing, but every knee should bow". The Apostles did, indeed, have many other things to say, but their statement in the Epistle to the Galatians was especially interesting. 1 Peter 2:6-8 (KJV) "For I do not want you to be troubled yourselves that God would destroy the things that are in heaven above and on the earth beneath, neither would I as such want a man. For I do not know you, and you know not where I am or how I am. But that is why I say to you, Be not anxious about anything: for the days will come when they will and videos.
